“ So many memories, for which I am grateful! This one was to me was surely true to her personality. Lynn and I had been visiting relatives in Amite. Our goal was to take them to lunch so we didn't call until we got to the end of highway 16. We were feeling so smart after we got off the phone with them. When we reached the turn off to their house, Uncle Silt was sitting at the corner. We decided to follow him to detur any efforts for him to buy food for us. We jumped out of the car just ax he was getting out of his car and we have him quite a start! Then big HUGS all around! He said he was there to get cranberry sauce and insisted that we go on to the house and he would be in trouble if he did not complete his task. We got totally hysterical. We said surly she didn't have time to make a feast , but.....she surly did. We had everything you could want all of our favorites and desert to boot! We laughed out heads off and she,once again beat us to the punch. We still did not get to treat them! We left feeling very special and blessed with our visit. Hoping we could return the blessing next time.

“ Aunt Helen was one of the strongest women I know. When my mom was bed ridden, and not expected to live long, Aunt Helen would bring Uncle Silton to visit mom once or twice a week. One morning Aunt Helen drove up alone. Mom asked Aunt Helen how Uncle Silton was doing. Aunt Helen just said that Uncle Silton was actually better than ever. Aunt Helen didn't want to grieve my mom and tell her that Uncle Silton had passed away and they had buried him the day before. How she did it, I do not know. I loved Aunt Helen.
