“ When we were youngsters, we seemed to be more brothers than cousins. Loved being with yall for so many family events. Staying over at yalls house on California Ave. We cut up and raised nine kinds of cane, but through it all had a blast. When we lost Steven, alot of those good time faded away.

My oldest son is named in his memory. Even though we haven't truly talked in decades, your passing hits just as hard. While I'm deeply saddened to hear the news, I will focus on the joy of your life. To know that you grew into a husband, father, grandfather, and a man of service to others is truly a joy that will stay with me in my remaining days. I'm glad you lived a good country life, one you had a love for since we were kids.

I pray for the Lord's mercy upon your soul, and upon family today and the days ahead. Love you, cousin. May we see each other again...one fine day.
