“ Well unlike most of y'all I haven't known jonboy very long ... About 4 years I believe... Met him thru a mutual friend they were always riding together and 1 day out of the blue while I was talking with our mutual friend he got out walked up and introduced himself... Said he couldn't help but notice all the outdoors stuff laying around(deer stands , feeders, fishing stuff and the 1 thing he said motivated him more than anything was all the squirrels running around my place... So our 1st conversation started off with him asking me if I would mind if he came back by and shot a few... I told him go ahead. After that it was instant best buds... We started hunting and fishing together and then hanging out. For a while there wasn't a day went by that we weren't into something... We built a friendship almost overnight that usually takes a life time to achieve... We had a bad falling out for a few months but got past it... Sadly to say the last 4_5 months I haven't seen much of him... It's just a dad tragic thing to lose yet another friend...I hope the fish are always biting and deerseason is always open for you bro...
