“ Somewhere near a baby cries. Somewhere far someone dies. Every where you would swear there is a pair of hidden eyes. The moon sets and the sun will rise. Without a doubt the rain will fall and then the sky reclaims it all. Just a simple cycle that happens everyday. It's just a little thing called life. We can never fully understand it, the truth is not always plain to see. We can never command it and never under rate it. Everything is a miracle for me. Ordinary people live each day as you and I. Every day is a new chance to get it right. It's just a little thing called life. I know you're out there somewhere Kev. Love Aunt Dee
