“ I didn't know her but i knew her sister Penny when she worked at the gas station in Franklinton. Penny was always laughing and just a pleasure to be around. One day she asked me if i could build her something (I cant remember what she told me she wanted) anyway i bought the lumber built it and gave it to her. Didnt charge her anything because i knew they were struggeling to make ends meet. She started to cry and i said to her if you gonna cry i aint building you nothing else. She was a sweet girl.
